Order Denying Motion to Reconsider and Denying as Moot Motion for Leave to File Supplement

[ECF 48, 53]

At the time of her death in May 2013, Barbara Kerr had a payable-on-death (POD) account that named two beneficiaries: defendant Tiiu Elizarde—a close friend of Kerr’s—and plaintiff Kenneth Friedman—Kerr’s son.¹ After Kerr’s death, the bank paid out half of the value of the account to each named beneficiary.² Friedman and Myra Leavitt, as the Executrix of Kerr’s estate, sued Elizarde for a handful of state-law claims, seeking to recoup the half paid to Elizarde. Elizarde moved for summary judgment, arguing that, as a named co-beneficiary of the POD account at the time of Kerr’s death, Elizarde was entitled to half of the funds under Nevada’s laws governing POD accounts.³ I agreed, so I granted summary judgment in favor of Elizarde and closed this case.⁴

Plaintiffs now ask me to reconsider that order.⁵

19 Plaintiffs request that I (1) reconsider my conclusion that NRS 111.797 bars their claims, (2)
20 “consider the difficulties in communication” between plaintiffs’ attorney and incarcerated plaintiff
21 Kenneth Friedman that “should have allowed for discovery to continue and justified a delay in

1 authentication of documents,” and (3) take judicial notice of Barbara Kerr’s holographic will.⁶
2 Because plaintiffs have given me no valid reason to revisit my previous findings and conclusions,
3 their motion to reconsider is denied, and I deny as moot Elizarde’s request for leave to file a response 4 to plaintiffs’ supplement.

Discussion

A. Motions for reconsideration under FRCP 59(e)

7 Rule 59(e) does not list “specific grounds for a motion to amend or alter,” and “the district
8 court enjoys considerable discretion in granting or denying the motion.”⁷ “In general, there are four 9 basic grounds upon which a Rule 59(e) motion may be granted: (1) if [the] motion is necessary to 10 correct manifest errors of law or fact upon which the judgment rests; (2) if [the] motion is necessary 11 to present newly discovered or previously unavailable evidence; (3) if [the] motion is necessary to 12 prevent manifest injustice; or (4) if the amendment is justified by an intervening change in 13 controlling law.”⁸ “[O]ther, highly unusual circumstances,” may also “warrant [] reconsideration.”⁹
14 But amending a judgment after its entry remains “an extraordinary remedy [that] should be used 15 sparingly.” As explained below, none of these “unusual circumstances” are present here and warrant 16 the “extraordinary remedy” that plaintiffs request.

B. The legislative history of NRS § 111.797

18 Section 111.797(2) states that “[a] right of survivorship arising from the express terms of the 19 account, . . . [multi-party accounts,] or a POD designation may not be altered by a will.”¹⁰ Because 20 the terms of Kerr’s account named Elizarde and Friedman as co-beneficiaries of the account at the 21 time of Kerr’s death, I found—and still maintain—that their designations on the account could not be

1 altered by Kerr's holographic will.¹¹

2 Plaintiffs request that I reconsider my ruling, and they urge me to consider the legislative 3 history of NRS § 111.797 and related sections.¹² At the outset, I note that the legislative history of 4 these statutes is not newly discovered or previously unavailable evidence. And where, as here, a 5 statute is unambiguous, courts generally do not look beyond the statute's plain language.¹³
 6 Nonetheless, having reviewed the legislative history plaintiffs offer, I decline to reconsider my 7 previous ruling.

8 The documents plaintiffs provide simply do not support their position. The first set of 9 minutes simply indicate the legislature's intention "that a testator of a will may make a disposition of 10 property and the appointment of a fiduciary dependent on conditions stated in the will as long as the 11 conditions do not violate public policy,"¹⁴ but this has nothing to do with plaintiffs' arguments. No 12 one is questioning a testator's ability to appoint a fiduciary based on conditions set forth in a will,
 13 and this does nothing to overcome § 111.797's express direction that a POD designation arising from 14 the express terms of the account may not be altered by a will.

15 Nor does plaintiffs' "supplement" to their motion for reconsideration require me to revisit my 16 ruling.¹⁵ The supplement simply shows that a committee member voiced concerns—while 17 discussing a different statutory provision—that many elderly people are susceptible to undue

21 ¹² Plaintiffs also appear to question, for the first time, the validity of the POD account designation
 22 arguing that it was not notarized. Even if the designation must be notarized and it was not in this 23 case, I decline to consider this argument because plaintiffs waived it by failing to raise it in opposition to Elizarde's motion for summary judgment.

25 ¹⁴ ECF 48-1 at 13.

26 ¹⁵ I also note that plaintiffs improperly raise new arguments and provide new evidence in their 27 supplement that is not responsive to Elizarde's response. Plaintiffs have a history of filing rogue 28 supplements without leave of court. See ECF 46 (striking plaintiffs' second supplement to response to motion for summary judgment).

1 influence by non-family members.¹⁶ But the minutes are incomplete, and plaintiffs have not cited to 2 any Nevada statute or other authority creating a presumption that POD transfers to non-family
 3 members are presumed invalid, as plaintiffs argue, and plaintiffs did not raise a presumption
 4 argument in their summary-judgment briefing. I decline to read these minutes, plaintiffs urge, to 5 conclude that all transfers subject to NRS § 111.797 and that are made to non-family members are 6 presumed invalid. Plaintiffs' motion for reconsideration based on the proffered legislative history is 7 therefore denied.

8 C. Communication barriers and delay in authenticating documents

9 Plaintiffs next request that I "reconsider the difficulties in communication between counsel
 10 and [Kenneth Friedman], which should have allowed for discovery to continue and justified a delay
 11 in document authentication."¹⁷ Plaintiffs do not cite to any authority for this proposition or even 12 speculate what evidence additional discovery would have uncovered and how that evidence would 13 have changed the outcome of this case. The only documents that Friedman potentially could have 14 authenticated if given extra time are letters between himself and Kerr before her death, which suffer
 15 from serious hearsay problems. And these letters would not have altered the outcome of this case
 16 because, as I have repeatedly explained, Kerr's alleged intent to alter the terms of her POD account
 17 via her holographic will is irrelevant.¹⁸ Accordingly, plaintiffs' motion for reconsideration on this 18 basis is also denied.

19 D. Judicial notice of Kerr's holographic will

20 Finally, plaintiffs contend that "By Not Taking Judicial Notice of [Kerr's] Holographic Will, 21 the Court Offends the State Judiciary and the Administration of Justice."¹⁹ They argue that, because 22 "Plaintiffs' Complaint plainly asserted that 'Decedent created a holographic Last Will and Testament
 23 . . . that was acknowledged and accepted by the Eighth Judicial District Court Probate

1 Commissioner,"²⁰ I was required to take judicial notice of the will.

2 I declined to take judicial notice of Kerr's holographic will because it was not properly
 3 authenticated, and plaintiffs did not provide any state court document showing that the probate court
 4 had accepted and was administering the will. Plaintiffs' argument ignores that, at the summary-
 5 judgment stage, I am no longer required to accept the allegations in the complaint as true. Instead,
 6 they were required to provide admissible evidence of the will and the state court's acceptance of it if 7 they wanted me to consider those facts.²¹ Now, for the first time, plaintiffs provide documentation
 8 showing that Kerr's will was admitted to probate. Even if I took judicial notice of Kerr's will at this 9 belated date, NRS § 111.797 explicitly provides that the POD designation could not be altered by her 10 will, so the will's contents and the fact that it was admitted to probate are irrelevant. In sum, 11 plaintiffs have not given me any reason to revisit my previous rulings, and I decline to do so.

12 Conclusion

13 Accordingly, with good cause appearing and no reason for delay, IT IS HEREBY 14 ORDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED that Plaintiffs' Motion to Reconsider [ECF 48] is 15 DENIED.

16 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Defendant's Motion for Leave [ECF 53] is DENIED as 17 moot.
